Examples of honesty are so rare nowadays that it is worthy of mentioning one in particular which came to light today. A sale at No. 10 North 5th and 10-cent store is apt to be as well patronized as is the welcome circus. This morning amongst a crush of the gentler sex at such a sale, Mrs. Lee Hall of Washington street dropped a pocketbook containing $100 and two Liberty bonds. It was a few moments before she discovered the loss but she was quick in making her loss known and a search was begun. Young Joseph Burns of Westerville is the hero of our story and upon learning who had parted with the valuables accidentally, found Mrs. Hall and returned the property. Mrs. Hall remunerated the boy for his honesty and the lad, who set before the public such a good example, was again lost in the crowd.

The Goddard football squad held a heavy scrimmage last night, the game being played between the first and second teams resulting 27 to 0 in favor of the first team, although the second team players showed up some fine playing. During the game, Jauchan, one of the fastest men on the team, dislocated his knee pan and now has water on the knee, which will probably bar him from all of the remaining games of the season. Two or three other men were knocked out in the course of the scrimmage. The men were put through a hard practice on breaking up forward passes, charging low on the line, spilling men, falling on the ball and catching punts. The team is really in fine shape to meet one of the fastest little college teams in these parts. St. Michael's team has one of the fastest full-backs from the Boston Latin school and a snappy quarterback from Westfield high school. Doherty, another all-star quarterback from New Haven high, plays with that aggression. A tough battle is expected by the Goddard boys next Saturday, when they meet that team in Winoski.

MONTPELIER

Charles Elwald of Montevideo, Uruguay, spoke in the city court room in city hall Tuesday evening to representative citizens of the city, and those who did not attend lost one of the best speeches in Montpelier in a long time. He told his audience the responsibility that the people of this nation had to face, that respect has changed from European nations to this one and that now we are "their practical ideal." France had been their ideal until the South American nations became acquainted with us through the war. The people of those countries look to this nation to carry through the play that has been staged and bring affairs into the right condition. Their confidence is on this nation. He has spent 16 years in the countries of South America. He told of the culture of those nations. There are two conditions to be met and the North American who goes there meets the larger problem, that of finding a very highly cultured people with whom to do business. He does not come in touch with the illiterate class, of which there are many in some of the countries. He showed the teachers who attended the lecture how poor their pronunciation of the South American names is. He discussed the banking there, the reason why Germany made such wonderful strides in exports to those countries, namely because she made them as the South American wants them and did not try to change their ideas. But she has lost all she had gained before the war. He told how much business with in his nation than they do in this country.

ANTI-GERMAN THOUGHT PREVENTED PEACE

Count Von Bernstorff Said That Peace Wilson Was in a Position in 1916 to Propose "Peace without Victory."

Berlin, Oct. 22.—Count Johann Von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the United States, who yesterday was the principal witness before the committee investigating the responsibility of German officials in causing the outbreak of the great war, resumed his testimony to-day.

While on the stand yesterday, Count Von Bernstorff told of the efforts made by President Wilson in 1914 and 1915 to find a way to bring peace proposals before the allied governments. German peace tentatives, made from time to time, however, handicapped Mr. Wilson in the opinion of the former ambassador, being construed by the allies as evidences of weakness on the part of Germany.

He said Count Bernstorff's impression that Mr. Wilson intended to propose a temporary peace which would not touch on territorial issues and would leave major problems connected with the peace to a conference of the belligerents. In 1916, the witness said, President Wilson was in a position to propose "peace without victory," but he declared Mr. Wilson deferred action because of the sentiment against Germany in the United States at that time.

DO NOT ADVISE AN AMERICAN MANDATE

After Investigating Conditions in Armenia, the Harbord Mission Expresses Its Disappointment of the Plan.

Constantinople, Oct. 21 (By the Associated Press).—Majority of the members of the Harbord mission, which has been investigating conditions in Armenia and trans-Caucasia, have indicated to the Associated Press correspondent their opinion that it would be inadvisable for the United States to accept a mandate for either Armenia or Turkey. Their view is that if the United States does accept a mandate it should do so only after the interested European powers have fully agreed to pursue a "hands off" policy.

Major General James G. Harbord, the head of the mission, would express no opinion on the subject.
